THE PROPHETS

BACKGROUND INFO FOR LEADERS

Throughout the Bible, God communicates with the people He created. This communication always has a purpose and calls for action. Sometimes God speaks directly to a particular person with a promise or a warning. Sometimes the hearer is told to take a message to another person or group of people. The prophets are God's spokespersons who deliver God's message to the Israelites. There are some early prophets, but the group that is normally referred to as prophets comes to prominence during the monarchy, or time of the kings. Traditionally the prophetic books are categorized by size (major and minor) and not significance. There are four Major Prophets: Isaiah, Jeremiah, Ezekiel, and Daniel; and the twelve minor prophets: Hosea, Joel, Amos, Obadiah, Jonah, Micah, Nahum, Habakkuk, Zephaniah, Haggai, Zechariah, and Malachi

In Deuteronomy, God offers the Israelites a wonderful deal- they can live in the promised land with God himself in their midst, protecting them and blessing them bountifully. They can live the good life and have a close, meaningful relationship with Him. Unbelievably, Israel spits in the face of God and rejects God, chasing after the pagan gods of her neighbors. Solomon throws away God's blessings, blatantly disobeying Deuteronomy, marrying foreign princesses, and worshipping their gods, even constructing worship sites for these gods in and around Jerusalem. Israel is sliding into idolatry, and the blessings of Deuteronomy are slipping away. Solomon conscripts many Israelites into forced labor in violation of Deuteronomy. When Solomon dies, his son Rehoboam, the new king announces that he will continue, even increase, the forced labor of Israelites. The people say, "enough is enough," and a civil war breaks out. The kingdom splits into two competing kingdoms- the Northern kingdom and the Southern kingdom- who once again spiral downward theologically and morally. Deuteronomy is ignored, and many of the kings and other leaders embrace idolatry. The splendor of Solomon's empire is dismantled, and his wealth is carried off bit by bit throughout 1-2 Kings. The book of Kings tells the grim story of how Israel and Judah, usually led by corrupt, sinful, and self-serving kings, severely disobey God, and abandon any attempt to obey Deuteronomy. The prophets act on God's behalf proclaiming the outrageously sinful violations of the covenant committed by the kings, the corrupt priesthood, the other leaders of the nation, the false prophets, and the common people. The prophets likewise proclaim the consequences that will come if the kings and the people do not repent and turn back to God. A few good kings in Judah including Asa, Hezekiah, and Josiah try to stop the slide, but the momentum is too great, and their reforms are short lived and swept away soon after they die. Though his prophets, God begs his people to repent and return to him, but both Israel and Judah continually refuse to acknowledge God and repent. The blessings from God soon disappear and God repeatedly begs them to repent and come back, but the continually refuse. A detailed and complex account is provided by the prophets, who show us the pain and agony that God goes through as Israel ignores Him and experiences the consequential judgment.

BACKGROUND INFO FOR LEADERS

Because of his great grace, God gives his people additional time, waiting for them to turn back to him. In this regard, 2 Kings 13:23 inserts an important theological comment into the Story, stating, “But the Lord was gracious to them and had compassion and showed concern for them because of his covenant with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. To this day he has been unwilling to destroy them or banish them from his presence.” Although Israel and Judah continually fail to obey the law- the Mosaic covenant, particularly as defined in Deuteronomy- rather than judge them immediately as the law warns, God graciously relies on his promise to Abraham and patiently endures their disobedience and waits for their repentance.

During the time of the prophets, there are two “superpower” empires, the Assyrians and the Babylonians, who rise to prominence during this era and conquer much of the region taking God’s people into captivity, or exile. Both Daniel and Ezekiel are part of the exiled population taken to Babylon. Most of the standard prophets preach their message just prior to one of these two invasions. When the prophets warn the Israelites and Judahites to repent and to turn from their idolatry or else judgment will come, the judgement they are usually referring to is the coming invasion of either the Assyrians or the Babylonians.

In regard to content, it is helpful to group the Prophets according to where they stand in time in regard to the exile. The prophets who lived and wrote before and during the exile are called pre-exilic/exilic prophets. A group of them have similar content- the standard prophetic message. These prophets are Isaiah, Jeremiah, Ezekiel, Hosea, Joel, Amos, Micah, Habakkuk, and Zephaniah. Nonstandard or unique preexilic/exilic prophets include Daniel, Obadiah, Jonah, and Nahum. There are three prophets who live and write after the exile is over: Haggai, Zechariah, and Malachi.

BACKGROUND INFO FOR LEADERS

The standard, basic message of the prophets can be synthesized down to three points:

- 1) You- Israel and/or Judah- have broken the covenant (Deuteronomy). You must repent! The prophets spend a great amount of time detailing the specific and consistent ways in which the kings and the people have broken the covenant agreement, usually defined in Deuteronomy. The prophets call these actions “sin,” “rebellion,” “hardness of heart,” “iniquity,” and “turning away from God,” among other things, and they list these out as “indictments” or “charges.” The major covenant violations that the prophets charge Israel and Judah with repeatedly are idolatry (a right relationship with God), social injustice (a right relationship with each other), and religious ritualism over close relationship.
- 2) No repentance? Then judgement is coming! The tragedy is that neither Israel nor Judah repents. Even as the prophets beg and plead for repentance, God informs them that the Israelites and Judahites will not repent.
- 3) Yet there is a glorious future time of restoration coming after the judgement through a righteous King, the Messiah. The kingdom of Israel crumbles, underscoring the failure of the many human kings, priests, and other leaders, as well as the people in general, to obey even the most basic components of Deuteronomy (the commandments). The prophets describe the coming destruction in detail, yet sprinkled throughout the books of the prophets are passages of hope. They look behind the present “human-led” kingdom and describe a glorious future kingdom ruled by a wonderful and righteous Messiah. This glorious king will answer the worldwide problem of sin.

One of the main messages of the prophets was to repent and turn to God, and this is the same message that we preach in the gospel: repent and give your life to Jesus. Pray for the lost using the BOB prayer. (Burden for the lost, Opportunity to share, and Boldness to act.)
